COVID-19 Impact on Newborn & Infants

- Although data are currently very limited, incubation time to onset for COVID-19 appear to be at least 4-6 days. Common symptoms include fever, respiratory distress, thrombocytopenia associated with ataxmia, liver function, and death. There was no evidence of vertical transmission in this study.
- Coronavirus infection is less frequent and less severe in children (Child Spreading Pattern).
- COVID-19 in the born infants is suspected in only two situations. Born to mother with suspected or confirmed COVID-19 or enclosed in affected hospital or caregivers.
- Inadequate testing of all infants with respiratory symptoms is not recommended. Excess infection before birth can have RT-PCR test negative and every infant with RT-PCR test positive can be quite healthy.
- During this pandemic, extra care is needed for a normal newborn born to a normal mother. Regular precautions such as hand washing and breastfeeding should be enough.
- Vaccinations should be given as usual.
